

Including Kinship/ Grandfamilies in State and Area Plans on Aging

Background

Nationwide, grandparents, other relatives, and close family friends are raising over 2.4 million children whose biological parents are unable to do so for various reasons, including death, military deployment, and substance use. While research shows that both kin caregivers and children benefit from being in kinship/grandfamilies, studies also indicate that these families are disproportionally impacted by financial instability, disability, and trauma and that the well-being of all members of these families improves when they receive appropriate services.

Many organizations in the Aging Network have developed programs and services to support these families. A 2023 USAging report found that 53 percent of Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs) offer services specifically for kinship/grandfamilies. Among Title VI Native American Aging Programs (Title VI programs), the proportion is higher, with 73 percent providing services for kin caregivers.

The interchangeable terms kinship families, grandfamilies, and kinship/grandfamilies refer to families in which grandparents, other relatives, or close family friends are raising children whose parents are unable to do so. To refer to the individuals who are raising the children in these families, this document uses the term kin caregivers.

Purpose of this Guide

This guide provides examples of language that agencies can use to include kinship/grandfamilies in their state and area plans on aging.

Federal Guidance on Plan Development

Following the passage of the 2020 amendments to the Older Americans Act, the U.S. Administration for Community Living (ACL) sent State Unit on Aging (SUA) directors a State Plan Guidance Letter that provided direction on many topics, including caregiving.

- ▶ ACL suggested that state plans on aging should include measurable objectives towards “enhancing services and supports for caregivers.” This includes kin caregivers and reflects recommendations from the RAISE Family Advisory Council.

- ▶ The letter also stated that AAAs should, “where possible, enter into arrangements with organizations providing day care services for children, assistance to older individuals caring for relatives who are children, and respite for families, so as to provide opportunities for older individuals to aid or assist on a voluntary basis in the delivery of such services to children, adults, and families.”

See Generations United’s GrandFacts: Fact Sheets for Grandparents and Other Relatives Raising Children to find organizations in your community that support grandfamilies. Please notify Generations United of any needed updates to these living documents by emailing grandfamilies@gu.org.

- ▶ ACL advised SUAs to coordinate their efforts with the Grandfamilies & Kinship Support Network: A National Technical Assistance Center.

ACL advised SUAs to consult recommendations from the RAISE Family Advisory Council’s Initial Report to Congress, released in September 2021, when developing their state plans on aging. These recommendations include a focus on the following:

- ▶ Increasing public awareness of the needs of family caregivers and the importance of supporting them.
- ▶ Increasing family caregivers’ awareness of the availability of information, services, and supports.
- ▶ Increasing the availability of respite services for family caregivers.
- ▶ Helping family caregivers access “meaningful and culturally relevant” information, services, and supports, including housing, nutrition, transportation, and services that reduce social isolation.
- ▶ Improving outreach to family caregivers to connect them to services and supports.
- ▶ Decreasing short- and long-term negative financial impacts on family caregivers.

Though not required, SUAs and AAAs also may wish to implement the recommendations from ACL’s Advisory Council to Support Grandparents Raising Grandchildren’s Initial Report to Congress, released in November 2021, including:

- ▶ Increasing the availability of childcare and other grandfamily-centered respite.
- ▶ Increasing the availability of no-cost or affordable legal and financial guidance or services for kinship/grandfamilies.
- ▶ Increasing the availability of mentors and peer support for kinship/grandfamilies.

- ▶ Increasing the promotion of evidence-informed, evidence-based, or model/promising practices to effectively support kinship/grandfamilies.
- ▶ Increasing the inclusion of kinship/grandfamily voices in the planning of services to support them.

ACL released final Older Americans Act \(OAA\) regulations in February 2024, updating regulatory policies for implementing OAA programs for the first time since 1988. Among changes made to rules on state and area plan development, the new regulations defined the term family caregiver to include older relative caregivers and defined the term older relative caregiver to include kin and grandparent caregivers of children. The OAA's National Family Caregiver Support Program and Native American Caregiver Support Program have long included kin caregivers as eligible populations.

Sample Language

Many state and area aging plans already contain language about the needs of kinship/grandfamilies in their goals, objectives, strategies, activities, and evaluation measures. Some also include goals on coordinating with the Grandfamilies & Kinship Support Network. Examples are provided below.

No-cost technical assistance is available to SUAs, AAAs, and Title VI Native American Aging Programs via USAging's partner, the Grandfamilies & Kinship Support Network, which is funded by ACL and run by Generations United.
